At the start of class on Tuesday, March 21, 2017, each Experience group will share a brief outline of the Experience they are planning. This is a time to receive and give feedback to improve our designs for our educational experiences. Please make sure you address the points below when sharing your design. When listening to others' designs, please think about the questions below and give constructive feedback. When you get feedback to your own design, please take it in a positive, constructive manner. We want the best experiences for our communities that we can design.

When sharing your design ...

1. Indicate what community group you are working with
2. Describe what the educational experience is
 - a. What type of experience it is
 - b. What you will do; What your audience will do
 - c. Where you will do it
 - d. When you will do it

When you are listening to others' designs ...

1. Does this experience share, teach, or allow the audience to experience something related to the August 21, 2017 eclipse?
2. Is this experience appropriate for the targeted audience? Too much/too little information?
3. Does this experience sound engaging for the audience?
4. Is the experience "doable" by the group (capable of being done)?
5. Is there something you think the group forgot or didn't think about? Something you think they should think about?
